

Clearwave Corporation Announces Migration to Dell Hosting Center

ATLANTA - September 24, 2010 – Clearwave Corporation, a national network leader in Patient Information Exchange software announced that the company is migrating to a Dell Hosting Center located in Plano Texas. This migration allows Clearwave to increase system stability and improve response times. The migration also includes the upgrading of hardware to new state-of-the-art servers, which gives the company more redundancy, further reduces the risk of any possible data loss and ultimately ensures better service to the company's customers.

The migration is scheduled to occur prior to November 1, 2010 and comes after Clearwave and Dell executed a Master Services Agreement in May 2010. Dell is now the producer of the Clearwave kiosk, which serves as a tool to help hospitals, physicians and other providers collect patient information through multiple platforms, lower administration costs, comply with federal and state regulations and provide for a better patient experience.

“We chose Dell because they have the expertise, size and structure to assist us with the sizeable growth that Clearwave is currently experiencing. We have every expectation that Clearwave will continue to grow at an even faster rate going forward,” stated Gerard White, president and CEO of Clearwave. “We are confident that our association with Dell will help meet the demand we are seeing from healthcare providers all over this country. We are committed to consistently raising the standard in our level of quality and service to our customers and this is another step toward that goal.”
