

CLEARWAVE TO EXHIBIT AT THE AMERICAN SOCIETY OF CATARACT AND REFRACTIVE SURGERY (ASCRS) 2017 ANNUAL CONFERENCE

ATLANTA – (PRWeb) May 2, 2017 - Clearwave Corporation, the healthcare industry's only data authentication and patient registration platform, announced today it will be exhibiting at the American Society of Cataract and Refractive Surgery (ASCRS) 2017 Annual Conference in Los Angeles from May 5 to 9, 2017.

This year's ASCRS Conference will be the largest U.S. meeting, integrating a scientific program dedicated to the needs of anterior segment specialists with the leading practice management program for comprehensive ophthalmology and subspecialties. Bringing together some of the brightest minds in ophthalmology, the conference will provide high-quality education for practice managers, ophthalmic technicians and nurses. Clearwave will be showcasing its self-service platform that improves workflow, streamlines the check-in process and increases patient engagement.

"As patients are becoming more tech savvy in the increasing digital world, providers must meet them where they are," said Brian Stone, CFO of Clearwave. "Through our patient registration system, we can propel our clients forward in their practice, ensuring they meet their patients' demands, while simultaneously supplying staff with the right tools that will lead to future financial success."

On average, patients spend approximately 20 minutes in waiting rooms of healthcare organizations that do not use self-service check-in software. However, for organizations using these systems, patient check-in registration times can be reduced to just two to three minutes. These systems aid organizations like Thomas Eye Group, who has increased its cash collections by $120,000, doubled their LASKIK procedures and reduced its claims rejection by 94 percent. Marietta Eye has also seen great improvements in its practice with wait times reduced from 28 minutes to 5 minutes, an 82 percent decrease.

"My goal is always to create the best experience for each one of our patients. Clearwave helps us achieve this goal," commented Elliot Gatehouse, Director of Revenue Cycle Management, Marietta Eye.

During the conference, Clearwave will also be hosting its 4th Annual New Horizons roof top party. Special guest, SlightLife, will promote their cause, focusing on eliminating global corneal blindness. The event is one of the largest co-sponsored events at the show and is held in memory of Laura Jackson, an ophthalmology industry leader.
