

CLEARWAVE CFO AND PARTNERS TO SPEAK AT AMERICAN ALLIANCE OF ORTHOPAEDIC EXECUTIVES (AAOE) ANNUAL CONFERENCE

ATLANTA – (Business Wire) April 19, 2017 – Clearwave, the healthcare industry’s only data authentication and patient registration platform, today announced Brian Stone, chief financial officer, will present alongside Robert Crabtree, administrative director of orthopaedics at the University of Alabama Health Services Foundation (UAHSF) at the upcoming American Alliance of Orthopaedic Executives (AAOE) conference in Indianapolis.

Stone and Crabtree’s presentation, “The Case for Installing Self-Service in a Busy Practice to Improve Workflow and Patient Engagement,” will provide a history of self-service solutions across multiple industries and discuss the technology’s recent growth in healthcare due to increased consumer demand and early technology adoption.

Additionally, Crabtree will present with Lisa Warren, CEO of Andrews Orthopaedics, in a session entitled “Implementing New Technology, Change Management and Creating a Culture of Innovation.” Session participants will be provided case study examples focused on results associated with implementation and use of new technology, like a self service solution.

“Patients have increased demands and providers are being required to take more responsibility for priorities outside of day-to-day patient management,” said Stone. “By incorporating technology into what previously were time consuming and mundane processes, providers, like Andrews Orthopaedics and University of Alabama Health Services Foundation, have been able to focus on providing better care and a more satisfying patient experience.”

The AAOE Annual Conference will be held April 22 – 25, 2017, at the JW Marriott Hotel in Indianapolis. Stone and Crabtree will present at 3:15 p.m. EST on Sunday, April 23, 2017. Warren and Crabtree will present on Tuesday, April 25 from at 9:00am EST.
